

SYED KHALID

Chicago Medical School

Why did you apply to the Kaiser Permanente Mid-Atlantic States Internal Medicine Residency Program?

Few programs in the country offer the opportunity to take care of patients in a clinically innovative environment, and even fewer allow you to take part in that innovation and experience how that changes patient's lives. The Kaiser Permanente Mid-Atlantic States Internal Medicine Residency Program is one of these rare training programs.

What makes you passionate about practicing medicine?

I love everything about providing patient care – the privilege to take care of patients is second to none. In doing so, we can not only develop a broad-based fund of knowledge to diagnose and treat complex medical conditions, but also approach solutions to the larger inefficiencies in medicine and innovations in diagnosis and treatment.

What's a fun fact about you?

I am new to Peloton and love it. Ride with me!

How do you thrive?

I'm a foodie and avid traveler. I love experiencing new cultures, places, and eating my way through cities.

I love inventing, creating, and building things that make a difference in patient's lives. Getting to work with and learn from extremely talented people in different fields is a huge plus in doing so.